Industrial

Our long-standing strength at SH3 is translation for equipment manufacturers. SH3 translates operator manuals, service manuals, spec sheets and machine labels. What's tough for most translators is the kind of work we thrive on.

It comes from years of working with manufacturers of agricultural machinery, construction equipment, engines, forestry equipment, power equipment, mining machinery, packaging machinery and more.

Training/HR

Many training programs fail to produce desired results because they're presented in English, which, for much of the world, is a second language.

SH3 can translate your presentations, online learning and course materials into the language and dialect of your trainees. Localized training enhances learning and boosts performance, which increases your return on investment.

Translation down to a science.

» It's one thing to speak the language. It's quite another to also have command of your industry vernacular.

Pharmaceuticals

Our pharmaceutical experience comes from working with leading healthcare companies. We use only translators that have the expertise and education required. And our project managers are well versed in protocols and the time-sensitive nature of pharmaceutical and biomedical communications.

So no matter whether you need to translate case report forms, clinical trials, journal articles or medical testing instructions, you can rely on SH3.
